

4Another, a 501c3 non-profit is coming to town. Our team is made up completely of volunteers. Our mission is to raise funding and awareness for childhood cancer research. This summer there will be a team of two, plus support team who will take off from Virginia Beach, VA on June 20 and arrive in Los Angeles, CA about 115 days later. We will be running. I was able to complete a cross-country fundraising run in 2013 with two other teammates and raise $103,000 in the process. Along the way we visited hospitals and families, and held events to aid in our fundraising efforts. We plan on bettering that number this year.

The donations we collect on tour will go directly to Children's Oncology Group and fund pediatric cancer research. This is an organization set up to help fund the 9,000 doctors and nurses with 200 hospitals worldwide that determine the treatment protocol for 90% of the children with cancer today. This organization is staffed by volunteers and has all their financials available on their website: www.childrensoncologygroup.org

I hope to speak to you soon about visiting some families at your hospital and delivering some smiles and gifts. We have a schedule and hope to stay on time so we can meet our obligations from VA2LA!

Thank you for taking the time to read this. I wish you the best and hope that you will consider meeting us on the road one day to run a mile or two and sign our tour bus. We all have something we can do, 4Another. Please contact me for more information or to schedule events or interviews.

Best,

John McKay
